

HOMECOMING FEATURED AT MANY SCHOOLS

Universities Throughout the Country Honor Alumni by Setting Aside Special Day.

OHIO STATE HAS 2 DAYS

The Big Game of the Season is Always an Occasion for a Return to Alma Mater.

Homecoming Day at the University of Missouri is only one of many Homecoming Days held at universities throughout the country in honor of the "old grad." The big game of the season is always the occasion for a gathering of alumni and the crowds often reach huge proportions, as at Columbus, Ohio, this year when 25,000 persons attended the Ohio State-Michigan game.

Ohio State is having two big days this fall. The first was Homecoming Day, November 13. Besides the football game, there were parties for the alumni, vaudeville performances, and a dance on Saturday for alumni, visitors and students. Over 8,000 alumni attended and registered during the two days. The second big day will be Ohio State Day, November 26, when they will celebrate the end of a campaign to raise money for a new athletic stadium.

The Homecoming of the University of Wisconsin was held November 13, when Wisconsin defeated the University of Illinois.

Universities on the Pacific Coast, as well as in the "Big Ten" are making extensive plans for Homecoming. A large feature was the Homecoming of the University of Oregon's Homecoming November 13. Word for the first was gathered by the freshmen and the press ignited after the game. The city of Eugene, Ore., was covered with "Welcome Home" signs for the returning graduates and a big parade and dance was given in their honor. All of the students wore specially-made caps for the day. The slogan for the Homecoming was "You can't beat Oregon again."

The University of Washington will have its Homecoming during Thanksgiving time at its inter-sectional game with Dartmouth. The Homecoming will last four days. On Wednesday the alumni will register, there will be a Glee Club concert and a dance. Thanksgiving Day will be occupied by alumni and Friday will be reunion day. All of the classes of old grads will have their class meetings. On Saturday will come the dedication of the new stadium and the game with Dartmouth, followed by a dance Saturday night.

Girls will play an important part in the Homecoming of Texas University on Thanksgiving Day. Four hundred girls all dressed in white will occupy a section in the bleachers and will be led by their own cheer leaders. Eight men have also been appointed to lead the cheering and will sit together at the game.

The biggest Homecoming for Nebraska will be on November 20 when Nebraska meets Washington State. A huge parade is to be the feature of the day. In the Missouri Valley all of the schools will have Homecoming Days except Grinnell, Kansas and the Kansas Aggies had their Homecomings on November 13. Missouri and Washington will have theirs on Thanksgiving Day.

Grinnell is not having a Homecoming Day this year because of the absence of an important football game on its schedule around Thanksgiving time which would draw large crowds of alumni to Grinnell. The school is planning a community pageant in the spring to commemorate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Grinnell College and the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims.

Showme on Sale Wednesday. The Turkey Day number of the Showme will be on sale Wednesday. It contains forty-two pages with a large amount of art work. The cover design is a picture of a football player in action. The literary as well as the art work in the magazine emphasizes the Thanksgiving spirit.

University Band Formerly Wore Prince Alberts and "Stove-Pipes"

The first band at the University of Missouri was organized in 1885. Gen. E. H. Crowder, then a lieutenant, was commander of cadets at the University. The band was the result of the opinion that a military organization of any sort was of little value unless it had a band.

The big difficulty was to get instruments. Donations were solicited by a committee and Major James Rollins, of Columbia, gave Lieut. Crowder a signed blank check, telling him to insert the amount needed. This gift made possible a "fine" set of instruments.

This set of instruments consisted of an E flat bass, a B flat bass, a baritone, two different selections, playing in two parts and at the theater in the evening. And most of these numbers were not marches, either.

W. B. Cuthbert of Price avenue, and George Venable, the present director of the band, were in that first band. The others, none of them professional musicians, are lawyers or professional men in various parts of the country.

Fred Pannell was followed by B. H. Goumar as director of the band, and in 1910 Mr. Venable assumed the leadership of the band.

In late years the band has progressed rapidly and has earned a reputation for itself throughout the country, because of its concerts in Kansas City, St. Louis, and at large gatherings in Columbia at which set of town visitors hear it.

tenor and two alto horns, four B flat cornets, three E flat cornets (these instruments are seldom used in bands now), an E flat clarinet and two drums. All that was necessary now was music and a director. The band members, therefore, paid their director and bought their own music.

ADDITIONS MADE IN 1896

In 1896 the band was increased in size by the addition of a trombone, a B flat clarinet, a solo alto and a piccolo. And in January 1895 the band gave its first public concert.

Fred Austin of Chicago was the soloist. He was accompanied by Prof. W. H. Pomeroy of the music department of the University. This concert created quite a "stir" in the community.

PLAYED AT ORATORICAL CONTESTS. In those days the band used to travel, not with the football team, but with the delegations that went to oratorical contests. The first football trip made by the band was in 1899, when Missouri played Washington University at St. Louis. Because of the score, 45-0 in favor of Washington, the band dispersed and did not assemble for a week.

It was one of the band's usual customs to join in and play with any band that came to Columbia. And on one of these "musicales" the band played forty-three

Only those having a large amount of interest and possible assistance were undertaken by them. They led various parades that were not exactly authorized by the faculty, but which "got by" to some extent.

Nobel Peace Prizes Rare

Of the Eighteen Awards Since 1900, Only Two Go to Americans.

It has been reported that Woodrow Wilson may be awarded the Nobel Peace prize. The Noble prizes are awarded from a fund of $9,000,000, bequeathed by Alfred R. Nobel for important discoveries or inventions in physics, chemistry, medicine, or physiology, for distinctive work in idealistic literature and for important services in the interest of peace.

The work of the Nobel Institute began in 1905. Of the eighteen who have received the peace prize only two have been Americans. There have been eighty-six Noble prizes of all sorts awarded since their foundation and only five have been to Americans. Theodore Roosevelt received the peace prize in 1906 in recognition of his part in ending the Russo-Japanese War. Albert A. Michelson was awarded the physics prize in 1907 for his work on the length of light rays. Alexis Carrel in 1912 obtained the prize in medicine for his work in the future of blood vessels and transplantation of organs. Elhu Root was given the peace prize in 1920 for his efforts toward international arbitration and his work in connection with the Pan-American Union. Theodore W. Richards received the chemistry prize in 1914.

GLENNON CLUB HOLDS DEBATE

Negative, "Resolved That Bazing in the University Be Abolished." Win.

Resolved that: "Bazing in the University should be abolished" was the subject of the debate of the Glennon Club Debating Society recently in the Knights of Columbus Students' Home auditorium. The affirmative was defended by Norman Ulricht and W. Davis and the negative was represented by Edward Boyer and Louis Brandenburg. The negative side won.

An inter-debating society clash is being considered by the officers of the Athenaeum and the Glennon Club, the subject of which will be "Resolved that evolution is an untenable principle."

The Pilgrim Fathers and Mothers Gave Thanks in the fall for bountiful crops

And so the custom has come down to us today.

But our forefathers had only slow, tedious and unsatisfactory methods of grinding their grains. We of this age can feel doubly thankful that modern methods of grinding have produced such a superior flour as White Way. With it you are sure of success in your baking—whether it be bread, muffins, pies, cakes or doughnuts. It makes them all equally well. For your Thanksgiving baking, order a sack of White Way. It's a Columbia product, grown and ground in Boone County, and named for Columbia's White Way.

"The Right Way is with White Way."
